Penfriends for Life

Nona Avery and Alice Powers are best friends. They rarely see one another but write regularly, and have written over 1,000 letters over the past 70 years. This habit of exchanging news twice a month started in 1942. Just after her 12th birthday, Nona saw an advert in a magazine about making new friends across the world through writing letters.

One of the messages was written by a girl called Alice, from Ohio, USA. Nona had never even left her home town of Sheffield, England. She thought this would be a great way to learn about a different life. She sat down immediately and wrote a letter, which she sent with a photograph of herself. Two weeks later, Alice's letter arrived, also with a picture of her and her family. The girls were the same age and realised they were similar in many ways, sharing a love of books, films and fashion. They even both had a pet dog.

Throughout their lives, they celebrated major events like weddings and births. They had families and jobs, Nona as a secretary and Alice in a hospital office but, as neither of them earned much, they had to wait 45 years to meet. In 1987, Alice saved enough to visit England and she travelled there later that year. They were nervous and excited to finally meet. In 1991, Nona visited Alice in Ohio. They still write, of course, but haven't visited each other since. Nona's daughter recently bought her a computer so the friends could communicate more quickly, but Nona says they prefer to write by hand and that 'email is not for us'.

For questions 1-3, please answer in complete sentences. (2 marks each)

1. How often do Alice and Nona write letters to each other?

2. Why did Nona choose Alice as a penfriend?

3. In what year did Alice and Nona first meet face to face?
