A Very Famous Pencil?

A rather ridiculous story was reported in the news recently, which involved a stolen pencil. Famous Cuban singer, Camila Caballo, was being interviewed at the recording studios of the BBC radio station, Radio One, by DJ Greg James. They were talking about the previous evening, when they had both visited Kensington Palace, home of the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge. During the interview, she confessed to stealing a pencil, although she said she had taken it as a joke.

'I have to apologise because I just couldn't sleep last night,' Camila told Radio One listeners. The singer and the DJ had visited the palace to meet the finalists of Radio One's Teen Heroes Awards. While there, she took the pencil, which was lying next to a notebook on a side table. As her jacket had no pockets, Camila, who had no bag of her own, hid it inside one belonging to her mother, who was with her at the time.

Greg James had clearly played his part by persuading Camila to steal the pencil, even though she had no need for one. He then announced to the members of staff working there what had happened. The simple wooden pencil, which had no marks on it, has been examined by an antiques expert. He claimed that although such a common item is almost worthless, it could actually sell online for a lot of money because of its new royal connections. Other everyday items owned by celebrities have sold for hundreds, even thousands of pounds. He suggested that Camila keep the pencil for now, as the value might increase over time.

From the radio interview, it was clear that Camila regretted her actions. Her mother had said she should put the pencil back. However, the Duke and Duchess, showed their sense of humour by allowing Kensington Palace to post an 'I'm watching you' emoji, which got some laughs on their Twitter feed.

In questions 1-3, please answer in complete sentences. (2 marks each)

1. Where was the pencil stolen from?

2. What did the antiques expert recommend?

3. How did the Duke and Duchess feel about the situation?

Read the five short texts below, which are all about holidays. Choose from the texts (A to E) and complete the answer grid. The texts may be chosen more than once. One has been done for you as an example.

Marks Awarded

A The best holiday I've had was here in the UK. We didn't have a lot of money, so we stayed in a tent only a few miles from my house. It was really good fun, but the tent was quite small so it was crowded and a bit uncomfortable at night with all four of us. We didn't do much. We enjoyed sitting by the river and taking pictures of the ducks and other wildlife. That's one of my holiday hobbies. It was quiet so I read a lot of my book, too.

B. The most important thing for me on holiday is fun. Every year, I go away with a group of my childhood friends. At school, we were terrible at sport and avoided all the after-school clubs. On holidays, though, we love being active and adventurous. Whether it's scuba diving in the ocean or snowboarding, we always have a great time, whatever the destination. Next year, we're mountain climbing in Canada.

C. I enjoy holidays abroad, but not for the weather, as most people think. I don't really like sitting on the beach, but prefer talking to local people to find out more about them. This gives me a chance to improve my vocabulary and learn a few more useful phrases. My wife and I love going to visit museums and ancient buildings. It's great to see how other people used to live and I enjoy taking photos of old houses and streets. I'm always exhausted after my holidays but they're always really interesting!

D. When I go away on holiday, I like city breaks. Going to different cities is a good way to experience a different country, although I can't speak any other languages. I like going by myself because then I can go where I want and I don't have to worry about what other people want to do. A few days is usually enough – any more than that and I get a bit bored.

E. I like discovering new places on holiday, especially quiet beaches and little villages. However, it's so much better to go back to a nice, up-market hotel rather than a horrible budget place, or even worse, a tent! It doesn't matter where the hotel is but it needs to be beautiful. It's even better if it has a huge swimming pool because I also love relaxing on a sun lounger and taking selfies. I have a great camera on my phone.
