Marks Awarded

April (A)

My name is April and I live with my parents on a farm in the mountains. I work in a café in our village on weekdays. The café is only open from Monday to Friday. I usually drive to work but sometimes I walk if the weather is nice. In my free time, I play basketball. I play in a team every Sunday morning. Next week, we have a match so I'm going to practise hard this week.

Badru (B)

I'm Badru and I live with my sister in a flat in a large city. I work in a sports shop every day except Monday – it's my day off. I catch the bus to work and usually go to the gym in the mornings before I start work. There is a gym next to the shop. Next week I have a holiday so I'm going to Manchester to watch my favourite football team play in an important match.

The African Giant Pouched Rat

One of the biggest rats in the world is the African giant pouched rat. Most rats live for about two years, but this one can live for seven years and grow as big as a cat.

This large rat lives in forests across Africa, in groups of about 20. Some people keep this rat as a pet. It is light brown with a cream-coloured stomach and a long, brown tail. You can pick up a pet rat, but you should only do this in the morning because this is when it is sleepy and relaxed.

It needs a strong cage to live in. A metal one is best because the rat can eat through plastic and escape. It needs to come out of its cage every night and have enough space to run around. It will eat almost anything: fruit, vegetables, pasta or chicken. It needs to drink a lot of water. It can get a small amount of water from vegetables or fruit, but this isn't nearly enough. It needs a large water bottle in its cage.

This rat has tiny eyes. This means it can't see well but it has an excellent nose. In African hospitals, doctors have taught it to find illnesses in sick people. It uses its sense of smell to do this.
